This online workshop (Zoom) aims to assist generalist speech pathologists assess literacy clients, and plan and deliver effective and efficient therapy based on the best available scientific evidence.

- Assessment of phonological processing, decoding, fluency, spelling, and other literacy-related areas.
- Current theoretical model(s) of how reading and spelling skills develop.
- Integrating intervention targeting phoneme-grapheme correspondences and morphology.
- Programs and resources: sorting the wheat from the chaff, and providing parent-friendly homework including plenty of well-targeted connected decodable text.
- Health promotion: working with teachers and others to sink Whole Language and float the good ship Structured Literacy (a key part of which is explicit, systematic, synthetic phonics).
